Responsible students grow up to be responsible adults. Responsible students don't have any one secret for their success...but they do practice some habits that help them. Below are seven habits that can make any child a highly responsible student. Please honestly evaluate yourself on each habit.

1. I Set Goals All the time Sometimes Never
Give an example of a goal you set and completed successfully. _____

The Middle School Faculty believes that all of the above habits are essential for success at Immanuel Lutheran School. All students may not have all of these habits mastered when they enter Immanuel. The teachers are willing to help teach and encourage these habits. It is critical, however, that the students be willing to take ownership and make the commitment to master these habits. It is also critical that parents support the teachers and hold their children accountable for their own behavior and actions. Excuses and blaming others only enables unhealthy habits to continue.

_____ I believe I have the majority of the above skills to succeed at Immanuel.

_____ I do not have a majority of the above skills to succeed, but am making a commitment to learn them, take ownership for them and make them part of my character.
